THE JUNIOR CLASS

MANHATTANVILLE COLLEGE OF THE SACRED HEART

NEW YORK CITY

PRESENTS

THE 1945 TOWER

Dedication

The Class of 1946 dedicates the Tower to Mother Schroen, who has dedicated herself to our happiness here at Manhattanville. And what happiness we have now, she has shown us, has given each of us what is precious beyond words —the haven and strength of a faith woven through with love and pity. She has touched us all, however imperceptibly, with the beauty of her own great spirit, and we are finer for it. Our love and thanks are hers now: and they will be more deeply and surely hers as our understanding grows; and in separation we come to realize the extent of her Christ-like work for us — her children who love her.

MERE BERTHE LECROIX

1868-1944

Depúis quarante ans Mère Lecroix enseignait ici avec ce devouement, cette flamme communicable, cette bonté toute pénétrée d' intelligence qu'admiraient tous ceux qui l'ont connue. Elle a été un symbole vivant de la France traditionelle, elle a passé à Dieu dans les jours glorieux de la liberation de son pays et de l'avènement d'une France Nouvelle nee de la douleur et de l'héroisme et de la fidelité, et qui contièndra le passé dans une magnifique floraison de jeunesse et d'esperance. Mère Lecroix aimait la jeunesse et la jeunesse l'amait. Elle s'est devouée de tout son coeur ã son oeuvre d'enseignement et d'apostolat. Elle a porté toute sa vie un grand témoignage.

— M. Jacques Maritain

REVEREND MOTHER HELEN LUCAS

1880-1944

We have lost a great soul in Reverend Mother Lucas. She who had stormed heaven for a tortured world has left us, and the sorrow of her going has touched each one at Manhattanville. She, truly, was in the world, but not of it; the inner happiness she possessed so securely was given to each person with whom she came in contact, however briefly. Hers was a soul that strengthened and beautified Manhattanville with love; and her spirit, because it was so surely founded on that love of God, will never leave Manhattanville.

MOTHER GRACE C. DAMMANN

1872-1945

The door to Mother Dammann's office is always open now, but no one waits in the front hall to see her "by appointment". For in February Manhattanville lost her guidance, her understanding, her love. Yet in a larger sense that guidance, that understanding, and that love are with us still and will be always.

"Do the Truth in charity"; that was what she taught; that was her life. And many people have heard and will remember. For them she cannot die. Her strength lives on in her beliefs.

That she was a profound influence for good, we of Manhattanville, past and present, know. Her grasp of Truth, her ability to distill Truth from reality were among her gifts to us.

She held a place that is vacant now, that will perhaps never be filled. But hers was a life lived for God and others. We knew that; and so our sorrow is tempered with a joy.

Knowing her has been our privilege. We have loved her for what she has given the world, for what she has given us; we have loved her for what she herself was.

She wanted for us only that we live the Manhattanville ideal. For her the highest tribute can be simply that we keep that ideal as she has left it.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

The Class of Nineteen Forty-Five has always been considered the Victory Class. They arrived at Manhattanville in September, Nineteen Forty-One, three months before our entry into the war. We pray that at least half the world will be at peace before they graduate. But whether or not this may be, they still may be called the Victory Class. They sincerely thank the Dean for instilling in them the true spirit of Christians at war. They have shown their appreciation in the magnificence of their work as Nurse's Aides, in all the spheres of the Defense Committee, and this year, for Rehabilitation. They have learned to be tranquil in war while planning for peace. Theirs is the Victory Spirit.

Many of them have been important to the clubs since their Sophomore Year. We will remember the sporting way they hazed us, their beautiful Serenades, their hilarious prophecies, their exciting Senior Play. We wish we had known them as Freshmen.

In last year's Tower, they said that Forty-Six had chosen them as friends. We were touched beyond words. We can only say that because they have been friends as well as leaders, we will miss them.

SENIOR SONG

Steadfast in spirit,

Loyal and true.

We sing Manhattanville

Our praise to you.

We love no other

So let us always strive

To keep you in the hearts

Of '45.

COLLEGE SONG

On the heights so proudly standing
Strong against the blue,
High towers gleam commanding,
Loyal hearts beat true!
For Manhattanville sing proudly,
Swell the mighty song:
'Til the echoes ring out loudly
All the ages long.

Words by Lauretta Bremner '29

PATRICIA MARGARET ALGER, E. de M.

Biltmore Drive, Barrington, Illinois
Convent of the Sacred Heart, Lake Forest, Illinois

Pat's a tiny person to be as many-faceted a personality as she is. Her poetry is beautifully done, filled with color and warmth; her ability as President of the English Club was manifested in all its activities this year. She was that perfect size nine model at the Bridge-Teas, and she looked like the same model every time she went downtown. There's an elfin, infinitely appealing quality about Pat; the cropped curly hair, the laughing brown eyes and expressive hands all speak of a genuine love of life, a vibrant sympathy and understanding of others. Wherever she goes, Patty will bring laughter with her. She has left her laughter, the memory of her charming self with us, and it is a nice memory to have.

MARY ELIZABETH ALLEN

290 Park Avenue, New York 17, New York
Mary C. Wheeler School, Providence, Rhode Island

When Betty was first introduced to the West her travels began, and in spite of her Eastern background, she admits the ideal state is Colorado. However, Canada is nearer, and her college vacations often found her mastering the art of skiing at Mt. Tremblant. But Betty is not all play. She has the knack of keeping in the first letters of the alphabet when it comes to marks. And if you drop into the tea-room you undoubtedly will find her with a newly-lit cigarette, donning her pixie-rimmed glasses to pore over a last minute assignment, or the "Denver Post." The class of '46 would like to claim Betty, as well as the class of '45, but due to her accelerated program, we will always think of her as a very special member of this Senior Class.

BARBARA ANNE BANNON, E. de M.

706 Riverside Drive, New York City
Academy of the Holy Child, New York City

Barbara hides an astute, capable intelligence behind a nonchalant, unstudied manner. She knows a great deal about people, and in her own quiet way gives of herself to us. She is a real scholar, and a fine writer—her short stories are executed beautifully, and 'An American Day" is really a brilliant piece of work. Barbara enjoys life in all its extremes—whether it be scaling the heights in Thomistic philosophy or dashing downtown for a really good Frankenstein picture. And we at Manhattanville have enjoyed Barbara; we will miss her on the Heights which she has loved and to which she has generously given.

ELIZABETH ANN BAXTER, E. de M.

449 Broadway, Newport, Rhode Island
Rogers High School, Newport, Rhode Island

The words tumble out over one another. "B. Bax" has the floor. There is a sparkle in Betty, an infectious sparkle that draws and holds attention. For like the shamrock, she holds for us something of Ireland. For who but an Irishman could talk so convincingly as this, the President of our Debating Club? And who but an Irishman could so exactly characterize the people who live in her short stories? Betty has loved Manhattanville. It has been for her more than the "Times" in the morning and "packages at one o'clock." These things she has had too; but more than that, she has caught its spirit. That she will have always. And will always give. For that is Betty's way.

To transfer from one College to another is a rather frightening thought for anyone, but Jo not only proved her courage by weathering Sophomore year with us, she even outdistanced us by far. Now that she is a Senior she is still particularly dear to us because of her simple friendliness, her gentle sincerity and the quick smile she'll give you for a greeting. Her skills and interests are many and varied. She can toss off a short-story just as interestingly as a design. Tennis, Spanish, and Photography are just a few of the things she enjoys and her eloquence and enthusiasm have made her a valuable asset to the Debating Club. All in all she has one of the most unaffected and spontaneous dispositions, we have had the pleasure to meet.

What will we miss most about Bouscie? It might be her friendly "Hi, kids!" that we hear everywhere on the heights. It might be her performances par excellence in the little theatre, or her torrential French conversation. But no—it's that touch of "je ne sais quoi" —that rare charm that takes the gloom from a Monday, keeps the Senior Lounge in laughter, and adds the final note of indefinable something to every gathering. There's something very special about Bouscie. We can't say it in a few words, and it would be hard to say it even in many, but we all feel it, and we will miss it. What will we miss most? Bouscie, herself.

MILDRED CATHERINE BOYLAN

55 Olive Place, Forest Hills, New York
St. Angela Hall, 292 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, New York

When politics get too political and perusing Poe becomes appalling, in fact whenever we feel upset and rushed, we'll think of Mil, and wish her quieting influence were still here. Don't think from that, that she isn't gay. There's a light in her dark eyes that signifies a lively nature. The loveliness we see in Mildred's face comes from a loveliness inside. We often needed that influence. Her quiet, smiling sincerity made our own problems seem pretty simple after all. Mildred is a rare and unusual person, and we shall value her friendship as we treasure all rare and beautiful things.

DOROTHY JANE BOYTON, E. de M.

2609 Voorhies Avenue, Brooklyn 29, New York
Convent of the Sacred Heart, 1 East 91st Street, New York, New York

Brooklyn is full of surprises, and one of the most pleasant ones it has produced is Dorothy. A dependable source of information on the quickest route from Prospect Park to the Biltmore lobby, Dorothy is always ready to help anyone in any problem. Although she groans about "practice teaching," she has quietly succeeded in surmounting the difficulties, and not a hair out of place. That's the way we will remember Dotty. Unruffled and perpetually smiling, she managed the varsity basketball for two seasons, won the Aisy Sullivan Cup, and sailed through four years with no apparent trouble. We know she'll keep on that way, always smoothing out bumps for other people, and consequently finding happiness for herself.

MARY PATRICIA BRODY, E. de M.

501 West 134th Street, New York City
Father Young S. J. Memorial Academy, New York City

Mary is for once a perfect example of that much-used phrase, "Still waters run deep." And those waters are quiet, calm, and very, very clear. Mary is an unusually intelligent and logical person with a fine sense of justice, and ability to see an issue equally; and she has the courage of the true idealist who will defend her cause against any opposition. She is a good friend to have, loyal and delightfully unexpected in her humor, a person of reliability, sincerity and unassuming charm. We will remember Mary with gratitude for what she has given here, and our love goes with her as she leaves.

We can't help admiring Pat's calm New Yorkish composure though at times we know it leaves her, and in its place we find a gay and light-hearted friendliness. An inevitable three no trump bid echoing from the Senior Room of the Benziger Building serves to tell us that Pat is deeply absorbed in her favorite pastime—bridge. To inform ourselves of the latest in the world of fashion, all we need do is to glance at Pat, for her taste in clothes is impeccable and she has our vote for the year round fashion plate. Pat's fun-loving smile, enthusiasm, and gracious charm are but a few of the characteristics which endear her to Manhattanville.

MARY ANGELA BUCK, E. DE M.

Angie never could keep a straight face when she was hazing us. For, as in everything else, she always saw the funny side. Yet, though her laughter is easy, there is a steadiness in her that is ready for those who need it. We discovered it in "Lower Deck" last year where Angie's notes helped many a sophomore over the difficulties of Ma Mère's "Second Advanced" and the dreaded "Chinard." She showed us last year what an upper classman should be. And this year she has acted again as a guide for us along the junior road to seniority. She has been our friend. It is not easy to lose her.

Julie is the perfect example of "laugh and the world laughs with you." She literally infects the college with her humor. Though she has many a vital outside interest, Julie's presence at Manhattanville has made itself felt in many ways; as Mari's "right flank" in the Glee Club, as the Archimedes of the Math class and as a wonderful versatile friend. For Julie, occasional absence from class is no obstacle to getting A's in every course. Her constant companion is a box of crackers and her crowning glory is her shining black hair. We love her for her striking good looks and for her sincere sharing with us of our troubles or joys. Julie, we will miss you on the Heights, but know that you are destined for much-deserved happiness.

MARY CATHERINE CARLIN, E. de M.

Sunset Heights, Monroe, New York
Thevenet Hall Academy, Highland Mills, New York

The youngest looking of our much admired accelerators is from Monroe, New York, "forty miles up on the other side of the Hudson" as Mary promptly adds. She is truly queen of the paradoxes, a dainty blonde who annually plays murderers and gangsters with great gusto to the delight of bloodthirsty dramatic club audiences. Mary's ambition is to write short stories and she excels at character sketches. Her delicate "puff-of-wind" appearance is tempered by a finely developed wit, and her charming sense of humor by a generous and loving heart. This demure little Senior has amassed an enviable number of hours as a Nurse's Aide and the diplomatic way she piloted donors to the Blood Bank augurs for all kinds of successful achievement in the days to come.

JOYCE CARROLL, E. de M.

115 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, New York

Joyce has the truly happy faculty of being perfectly at ease anywhere on the campus. She takes reams of notes in the Brady Memorial Library for her sociology courses and surrounds herself with text-books, or she surrounds herself with classmates and coffee, in the Tea Room, and has a wonderful time both places. She's a nice person to know, a person of real strength and integrity, and an unusual amount of courage. She's unobtrusive, but she's not unnoticed, and never will be. We've been happy with her here, and hope that she will keep a special place in her heart reserved for Manhattanville, because Manhattanville has always had its special place for Joyce.

In these days of rationing we have discovered someone who is definitely pre-war in her super-abundance of everything nice. Admiration borders on envy as we realize that the Class of '45 possesses a person whose plurality of talents make her singularly outstanding. She is equally at home on the basketball court as she is singing Grieg or Gershwin. Her management of the Glee Club is as studied as her laughter is spontaneous. Wild gesticulating is as natural to her as artifice is not. An old plaid shirt is as becoming as her newest Sophie original. Manhattanville has been delighted by her vibrant charm and enriched by her gifts, scholastic, artistic, athletic and social, so generously given.

MARGERY COLEMAN

17 Serpentine Trail, Larchmont, New York
Ursuline Academy, New Rochelle, New York

"As a matter of cold fact" there is really nothing cold about Margery unless it is the cool way she takes exams and anything else that would have us all in a dither. For Marge there is no mood but good mood. We will never forget the day we left for Thanksgiving vacation; Marge was sitting in the gym smoking and joking, and wishing a good time to those who were going to her own house for a turkey dinner. For you see she was campussed. Delightfully unconventional, there is nothing commonplace about Marge, for while others merely sing forth in Glee Club, she sings fourth, and there are few who hold this distinction. Marge's genuine contagious laugh springs from a clear perception of the truly humorous; and from a real understanding of people comes a sympathy which makes her as welcome to her patients in her capacity as Nurse's Aide, as she is to us in any capacity. We will miss you, Margery.

Neither does the pre-debate tension faze her; Kay's calm judgment and ever-present dignity are tempered by the presence of an unexpected sense of humor. Kay can spend endless hours in labs and in Catholic Action yet still find time to collect accurate and extensive information in fields historical and sociological with which to delight and amaze us in debate. Kenwood, Convent of the Sacred Heart, Albany, New York

All her friends know Margie's generosity, her humorous remarks, and are captivated by her deep, infectious laugh. Margie loves a sense of humor in other people, clothes that are tailored and neat, and weekends at home in Connecticut. We remember how she tried to catch the early train on Friday afternoons and how she missed it without fail; we grinned with her and sympathized. No one is more conscientious than Margie; she worries some, but everyone knows that she is efficient and gets things done on time. She loves to swim and ice-skate and write letters. She is a wonderful room-mate, likes History, and has the kind of practical outlook on life that is refreshing to all who know her. An hour in the day-hops room or a bridge-game with Vera is an adventure never-to-be-forgotten. Marcie is another vivacious Bostonian; spontaneously sympathetic, she has a way of listening which encourages even the most reticent soul. Short stories and poems of hers have frequently graced copies of the "Essay." The broaching of current topics finds her ready with a constructive opinion, and she waxes enthusiastic on the merits and characteristics of the Red Sox. She is friendly and sincere and therefore a welcome addition to the discussions in all of Founder's friendly suites. To be a sea-gypsy is Marcella's ambition, and we are looking forward to imaginative stories with an Arabian, a Hungarian, a South American, or even a Polynesian mise en scène.

Every graduate leaves something of herself behind—she takes Manhattanville with her, but the college is not left unchanged—it has been enriched somehow. Camille contributed to our academic tradition, and in no mean wise. The Brownson Honor Society is much the finer for her solid scholarship and scientific learning. We get no erratic flashes from her—rather, a steady brilliance. With Gabie, Camille established what the campus needs—outstanding ability coupled with stability, quiet friendliness, and an unruffled joy in being alive. Pat is the unexpected. She looks like a Powers' model and tap-dances like a Rockette; she is one of our most faithful nurses aides and for a touch of originality in the signing-out book look for Gorm. Take a decided executive ability, an entirely unselfconscious and individual brand of humor, a marvelous laugh that wins you immediately, throw in a talent for holding phenomenal bridge hands, a cheerfulness manifested both at class and during off hours, and you get Lulu. She's been a leader since her Freshman days, always in the middle of the fun and the crowd, enthusiastic, cooperative, and having a thoroughly good time. But she also has the priceless ability to be in the middle of whatever work is to be done, too; she has been a wonderful head of the Missionary Association, and the success of this year's Bridge Tea was due in a great measure to Lulu's capable, and always cheerful management. Her work at Manhattanville and her lovable self will not soon be forgotten.

How easy and wonderful to know our tall, blonde Jane! Her sincerity and catching humor blended with a warm friendliness add to her efficiency as Chief Usher. Diligent as a nurse's aide, excelling in skiing, eleven o'clock visits as night proctor, Jane certainly made the rounds. Ginny is one of the most original members of the class of 1945. She has an enviable genius and bewildering admiration for Economics. We love her for handing her thesis in at the last desperate moment; we love her talent for sympathy; we love her boyish ways. Ginny was always to be found at bridge, with quick conversation on world events, or laughing at her unhappiness with the broom, or new demerits, or giving a riotous travelogue on Mexico. Clad in blue-jeans atop stage ladders, she lighted the pre-play confusion with laughter. Ginny is generous, sincere, and dryly humorous.

ALICE LORRAINE JOHNSTON, E. DE M.

439 Chestnut Hill Avenue, Brookline, Massachusetts

The exacting Victorians demanded much of the perfect lady; poise, charm, graciousness and accomplishments. Alice has all these but she has brought this concept up to date. She maintained her serenity throughout the almost "blizzarded" Boston Dance and the problem of a War-time Prom at Manhattanville; and was efficient chairman of both. Because of Manhattanville's reputation as a musical college, we expect "voices" of the B. Mus. students, but did not, nor could we, expect such exceptional quality as Alice's. One does not try to imitate the inimitable. One can only admire, and this we do. We will watch her as she follows her star to greatness.

JANE CAROL KAUFMAN, E. DE M.

1150 Fifth Avenue, New York 28, New York
Academy of the Holy Child

Our beloved Ma Mère, with her usual astuteness, delighted in calling Carol her little "papilion," and like a butterfly does this winsome strawberry blonde enchantingly pass through life, both here and in the wide and wonderful world. For one so petite, it is surely very courageous to so bravely attack all the papers for reviews of the most recent and outstanding theater productions. Her taste has been an excellent guide for the rest of us. Carol's piquant personality casts quite a spell at the Cathedral Canteen, where she has been a faithful and magnetic worker. In short, wherever she goes, Manhattanville is sure that Carol's elfin charm will spread joy.

MARY AGNES KEATING, E. de M.

192 Beach 142nd Street, Neponsit, Long Island
St. Agnes Seminary, Brooklyn, New York

Mother Patterson used to tell us that she loved Seniors because they were complete personalities. And with this definition before us, we think of Mary as Senior par excellence. She is a Child of Mary in the truest sense; she has a profound interest in her history major; her clear voice in Glee Club is as refreshing as it is exact. In Mary, completeness is synonomous with compactness, compactness that does not restrict but unifies in order to give. She has the ability, known to most of us only through hearsay, to know where she is going and get there. We might add this is true not only in life but on the Long Island trains.

4376 Westminster Place, St. Louis, Missouri
Villa Duchesne, St. Louis, Missouri

Kinsy, the versatile, how can anyone fill her place! As captain of the Varsity Hockey Team she will be deeply missed. Her enviable stickwork, her encouraging calls from Left Wing; above all, her determined little face, all these urged the Squad on to a glorious undefeated season. Though petite, this blond St. Louisan has a store of athletic ability. Four years have shown that the seniors couldn't have chosen a better A. A. representative. Coupled with her mastery of Sports is a true dramatic talent. Kinsy's hilarious interpretation of Priscilla in the Senior Production, "One Mad Night," will long be remembered. Although a steady worker, and very dependable, Kinsy is often found convulsed with giggles. Manhattanville will sincerely miss one of her most popular seniors, but she will leave behind a fresh scent of "tweed," and a dash of laughter.

LOIS MARIE KIRCHER, E. DE M.

9 MacPherson Terrace, Albany, New York
Academy of the Sacred Heart, Kenwood, Albany, New York

Lo is an integral part of our Manhattanville scene in the tea room where she can be found chatting enthusiastically every morning during breakfast. She is almost unique, because she never got any demerits; she is a steadfast adherent to bathtub ballads and has a prodigious memory, for she knows the words to almost every popular song. But there is much, much more to be told. Her friends constantly draw on her warm sympathy and patient understanding; her class depends on her clear-sighted optimism; and the entire college values her efficiency and above all the deeply charitable spirit that makes Lo a person to be loved and cherished.

GLORIA KLEIN, E. de M.

15 Park Avenue, New York City
Convent of the Sacred Heart, Noroton, Conn.

Come rain or sunny weather, Gloria always has a sparkling pun or a "bit of brogue" to brighten the outlook. Her varied tastes are as refined as her soft-toned voice; she enjoys singing, whether it be Choir, Glee Club, or over at the gym—for example, her heart-breaking "Mammy" rendition. Keeping posted on current affairs and new fiction are her favorite pastimes, outside of autumn's vigorous hockey, at which she's both nimble and persevering. Whenever the situation calls for creative imagination and ingratiating humor, Gloria gives her time and talent magnanimously; sophomore "serenades" and last year's "TOWER" and "prophecies" have kept her wits sharpened. Combining her generosity and Social Studies, Gloria plans to have a hand in rehabilitating the United Nations.

15 Park Avenue, New York, New York

If asked to describe Tillie, one would immediately think of the innocent expression on her face and the mischievous sparkle in her eyes. The latter is always there, but it becomes more intense when her imagination is concocting a fabulous story from which she derives her greatest pleasure, especially if there is a look of belief in her listeners' eyes. These unique fabrications have kept us spellbound for three years, but we are always dismayed at the end of the narration when she regretfully informs us that it is a plot for her next short story. We say three years because Tillie is one of the progressive-minded who took the opportunity to accelerate which has shortened her career at Manhattanville. Tillie's carefree courage, her sparkling sense of humor, and her great enthusiasm for the unusual make her one dear to our hearts.

14 Beech Tree Lane, Pelham, New York

"Gay has just about everything, doesn't she?" the freshman sighed wistfully. "Everybody likes her—and that hair—and her ring!" The freshman was speechless. Manhattanville has taken Gay to its heart. It has watched her as she modeled for the Mission Bridge, making others wonder if they could look "like that" in the same clothes. It has seen her at Glee Club, racing through the halls to class, heading Pelhamward of a Friday afternoon. And it is glad that she has loved us best. For we would have been less "gay" had she not been here.

There is much for us to wonder and to be awed at in the manifestations of Rosemary's genius—for she is one person on whom that much abused term can be used in all sincerity. Her distinct spark of originality was early proved by the delightful tale of the lonely dwarf; paradoxically her imaginative flair is balanced by her keen interest in concrete sciences. Her interests range from social responsibility—in Nurses' Aide and Interracial work—to artistic development—in Dramatic Club and eye catching posters. Her clear and wide-set gaze holds a thorough perception of people and problems, a real interest and often a hint of friendly amusement. Her talents transcend the typical college fields of activity, and we await her triumphal progress through the great wide world.

Libby is a gamin-like little person, with a fascinating low voice, a distinctive laugh, and a friendliness and integrity that will make her place at Manhattanville impossible to fill. Vibrant, full of energy, with something of a Crusader's zeal, Lib has a faculty for accomplishing tiresome little details as well as the important big ones, a rare gift, and much to be admired! She has worked for the Missions enthusiastically, has delved deep into Sociological lore, and through her two short years here has been a smiling, fun-loving, heartening beacon to all who knew her. Whatever the future holds for Lib, we hope a part of her heart will be at Manhattanville for she gave much to us, and will be "gone, but not forgotten."

Equanimous and gentle by nature, Pat will leave a group of devotees of her democratic way and charming insouciance. Chemistry and music formed the major and minor of Mary Lou's curriculum, with gab fests in the College Room and malteds in the Tea Room, balancing the lighter side. In her Freshman year she was one of the stars in a piano recital at Pius X. She is one of the addicts in regard to bridge: has pet color combinations—navy blue and kelly green hold sway at present; and her collection of earrings is both famous and fascinating. Her portrait kind of beauty is made lively with the sparkling of her eyes, but her special charm lies in a real gift for friendship. In Spanish, we'd say "simpatico."

A cool spring evening can erase the memory of a war, of unrest, of insecurity. Sheila has that same quality, the calm self-possession that makes the world a happier place. She is quietly strong, dependable, unselfish. We still laugh at Sheila's first speech for Nurse's Aide, when she talked with her hands. But we can only admire her work for that same Nurse's Aide, her athletic prowess, her general sportsmanship. Loyalty seems to be the keyword to her personality. She has shown it in her support of the teams, of the choir, of her class and her college. We know we can count on Sheila, and it is a good thing to know.

MARJORIE JEAN MAGUIRE, E. DE M.

1060 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Convent of the Sacred Heart, Eden Hall, Phila., Pa.

Just drop a hint, and up pops Margie with just the right poster. Yes, all corners of the campus will testify that Margie has poured out Margie unsparingly for many a worthy cause, be it storming Petit's on behalf of a not-so-energetic native, or burning the candle at both ends for the Liturgy. But her "all or nothing" tendencies did not forget that "store" precedes "pour," and the stacks could quietly peep over Marjorie's shoulder at some rather scholarly scraps of intellectual effort, before a "rare" tidbit would send her scurrying after a receptive comrade. "Rare" is just the word for that threefold thesis. Who else could dream up the seven-headed beast that startled the Studio out of a peaceful weekend? There is something of the "Don't fence me in" sensation in Margie's grasshopper method of getting places, especially from Soph to Senior status, and definite signs of the Fountain of Youth Gleam behind those big blue eyes. No wonder we'll miss Margie.

Joan has been one of Manhattanville's distinctive personalities since her Freshman year. Red-headed, astute, and endowed with a delightfully unexpected and succinct sense of humor, she is an integral part of Manhattanville life. You'd find her over in the Tea-Room zipping through her morning cross-word puzzle, in the Gym playing her special brand of unbeatable bridge, or in the Brady Memorial, turning out those famous History papers. She has a wonderful laugh, an unruffled disposition that is somehow very reassuring to those who let exams get them down, or who get frantic over last-minute papers, because Joan never does. She is a distinctive and delightful Senior, and all Manhattanville will miss her.

Rosie's one of the Boston crowd, dashing for that one o'clock at 125th Street, staunchly upholding the home of the "bean and the cod" against tongue in the cheek attackers. One of a crowd as far as that goes—but definitely one in her own right, a distinctive and likeable personality. There's a gentleness in Rosie, a sense of quick understanding and humor that is particularly her own—wistful might almost be the word, except for the overtones of melancholy in it—for there's nothing gloomy about Rosie at all. Hers is a subdued, yet vibrant appeal; hers an endearing sincerity. Think of soft muted colors slashed with glinting light and you've got Rosie. We've had her for four years; and we say "good-bye" to her regretfully.

Laughing brown eyes, bobbing dark hair, and an engaging smile that is as quick to come as it is slow to leave—all add up to make a picture of an active leader in the English Club. Then, as you begin to know her, there is something deeper than just these. Perhaps you have read her contributions to the Essay, seen her whisking down the hockey field to a sure goal, or watched her elfin antics in a conversation. Her favorite Mexican jacket has a pungent, lingering aroma of the tea-room about it. Then, there's her scrapbook that says so much between its lines of verse. Her jaunts to Cleveland and her Army wings add spice to her life, and vicarious spice to ours. Though Gerry's college days are over, we know that she will always belong to Manhattanville.

"Wait till I tell you." That's the beginning of another Miles's "killer" making history on the campus. We wonder constantly where Helen acquires her inside knowledge of College intrigue, and how much is the product of the creative mind that made her short stories so popular. Helen is a unique person, and managed to conquer Greek and Latin, write her stories, and still find time for bridge and fun. She is a very lovable person, we think, and our opinion is corroborated by the legendary mouse in Arcadia who followed her to Founders. Probably he was "piped" over to listen in breathless wonder to Helen's "twice-told tales." We'll miss her stories, but we'll miss the author most of all.

Jean is small and peaceful. Her friends testify to the charm of her silvery laughter and to her winsome appeal. Her versatility is shown by her enthusiasm for song, for sport, and for contriving clever costumes for the sock and buskin department. One proof of Jean's sterling worth is the fact that she completely won over Ma Mère by the end of Second Advanced French. Anna is unique. In her, brilliance and beauty combine to make an unforgettable personality, a distinct individualist. If there is anything she can't do, it hasn't been discovered at Manhattanville. Her short stories are masterly, her acting superb—who will ever forget the wild loveliness of Ophelia, the dignified power of the Prioress? And Anna's talents extend into the realm of practicality too—she was an extremely capable and business-like editor of the Essay. Her definite originality manifested itself even in her hobbies, not least of which was designing the Home of Tomorrow; and Anna's own tomorrow is beginning today. Manhattanville loses a truly wonderful person in losing Anna; we know that the dignity, charm and loveliness which have been hers here today, will never leave her, and will win many to her "tomorrow."

Is there any place on Campus we have not found Helen? Her dry wit in the Tea Room; her penetrating questions in classes; her resigned acceptance of the Library—. These are Helen, but they are not the whole Helen; for she has a wealth of Sacred Heart tradition behind her. This tradition along with her "making the most of every moment" personality cannot help but complete the forward-looking person that is Helen. Marian's golden serenity is a byword among us. Her profound thoughtfulness is expressed by extremely diversified studies and by an unconscious, kind charm towards all. Her steady, quiet influence is felt by everyone, and is punctuated by a deep and delightful vein of humor. We admire her greatly for her high ideals and love her for the happy way in which she unostentatiously achieves them. Her fragile, shining beauty mirrors a personality which draws all who know her into the magic circle of her friendship. The Children of Mary, all phases of Catholic Action—Girl Scouts, Catechetical work, the Missionary Association—all of these will feel an active lack next year of those deep qualities which have informed the mind of this Brownsonite. Our Marian is perfection with the charm and humanness of ordinary, less gifted mortals.

When we hear that "good things come in little packages" we're heartily inclined to believe it's true, since Jeanne is one of our most petite Seniors. However, her height belies her long stride which not only amazes those who attempt to compete with it, but usually completely exhausts them. Moreover, this is only one of Jeanne's singular qualities. We all love her for her sincere devotion to her home town, St. Louis, whose laurels she continually sings. These praises, of course, are always accompanied with a cheer for the Browns, her favorite baseball team, for which she has a phenomenal admiration. Carol and her group of IRT commuters are a familiar sight as breathlessly they hurry to the Heights for that nine o'clock class. Her college career has demonstrated that she is a conscientious student. She has always had a keen interest in her classes and a real desire to delve beneath the surface. An English major, she has a special place in her heart for Mother Williams' courses. Carol's ability to couple work with play frequently leads her to a neighborhood theater after class. If we were asked to describe Carol, we would say she personified calm dignity, quiet charm, and a philosophic interest in others.

JUDITH MULLIN, E. DE M.

76 Shanley Avenue, Newark, New Jersey
Convent of the Sacred Heart, Eden Hall, Torresdale, Pa.

Unforgettable in her berserk roles in class entertainments and Dramatic Club presentations, Judy is flexible in real life as well. So versatile is she, in fact, that one never knows what to expect. She can equally assume the atmosphere of an English duke, a society woman, or a be-brogued scullery maid. She finds humor in every phase of college responsibilities, providing endless laughs for anyone in the doldrums. In Judy, A. Conan Doyle has a faithful exponent, for she conscientiously reads and records mysterious situations well after bed time, and sees obsolete movie thrillers for outside work. But the attainment of her diploma proves that she must have a serious side —we defy you to find it!

610 Lingle Avenue, Lafayette, Indiana

Whether you find her whipping through the tenth novel or relaxing with a game of bridge, you will always find the wholesome freshness and inborn fineness that are Dee's. Her friends at Manhattanville are innumerable, and as for "outside connections"—well, just look at her mailbox any day! Equally at home with Seniors and Juniors alike, Dee's friendly leadership has strengthened the link the accelerators have forged. It is generally conceded that summer school at Manhattanville without Dee would be like the Benziger Building at one o'clock without bridge. She has not only been at Manhattanville; she has been of Manhattanville.

B. J. can always find the lighter side to dispel any gloomy clouds of exams, term-papers, and other ever present student dilemmas. She is characteristic of her class in her social consciousness, and her work for the Missionary and Interracial Committees. "We love her for her smile, her look, her way of speaking gently"—but mostly for her cheery and always friendly self. She is one of those strong and ready people to whom the class of '45 owes so much of its unity. Her pet hobby is art, and Manhattanville's eye has often been caught and held by many a Murphy poster.

To say that Bobby is enthusiastic is an understatement. Whether planning an Interracial Meeting, a day at the Knickerbocker, or an article for the Essay, her ability and spontaneity always carry her through to the "Heights." Her infectious grin, her entertaining announcements at Assembly, and her latest exploits at New London have won her a lasting place in our affections. Her work on the Tower last year is definitely enviable from our point of view, and she has given so much of her time and talent to the extra-curricular activities that we will find next year a gap that will be hard to fill.

Eileen has a perpetual fund of friendliness available to all. She has wisely concentrated her thoughts on the good and positive side of people, events, and ideas; perhaps this is partly due to the fact that one unconsciously presents one's best side to her clear and gentle gaze. This year, Eileen has given her time to Nurse's Aide, and to learning as much as possible about Oregon and the culinary arts, subjects closely related to her heart. Her shining example of enthusiastic and incessant interest will remain with us, as we watch her go forward to a well-deserved, happy future.

Whether Judy is playing Offenbach for Mr. Harms or halfback for Mrs. Klug, she is a delight to the college. For her skills are varied and promise a successful future. In spite of her petite size, she is apparently physically tireless and invests all her accomplishments with an air of vital interest which makes them enviable as well as matchless. Along with these qualities are Judy's laughing eyes and ever-ready smiles which we know will carry her far, and right into the hearts of her future friends. And we at Manhattanville will fondly remember our A. A. President, our star on the hockey field, the basketball court and the lacrosse team. Are not these and her other talents, a living proof of a "Mens sana in corpore sano"?

Citizeness of the world, with all her savoir faire implied in a gesture of her hands, a smile flickering around her mouth, laughter in her wise eyes, Ro is everything that Manhattanville loves. We will never forget her despairing, gay spirit, with which she accepts those three week suspensions, and the despondent irony with which she salutes her notes Françaises. These have endeared her to us, these and her strides down tiled halls with coat waving in the winds. Ro is a lover of humor, of "experiences," of intrigue, translated to others over coffee and envelope salvaged Chesterfields. She was memorable as Horatio, but she will always be remembered as Ro. "Est modus in rebus." Of the rarest and finest value is the philosophy of life by which our President has measured the pathways along which we are led. Hers is a life governed by the Golden Mean, golden in the height of her aspirations, bounded only by the extent of her self-sacrifice. From the roots of her wisdom grew the flowering of our understanding of all that Manhattanville is. In her progress is our tradition. There is a way in things—and Dotty's way is that of determination of purpose, hidden under the guise of a smiling grace and easy laughter. We expected much of her—leadership, dependability, efficiency; the unexpected—her humor and thoughtfulness, her warmth of personality, have lent a lovable reality to her strength. This is a time for greatness; Dotty has shown us how to be great.

CLAIRE NESTER. E. de M.

19 Signal Hill, East St. Louis, Illinois
Academy of Notre Dame, Belleville, Illinois

Claire is a delightful conglomeration of Louis Pasteur, Alice Marble, and Ely Culbertson. Often we've been tempted to suggest she adopt "Biltmore" as a middle name. To know Claire is to know a kaleidoscope of talent and fun. By no means an exhibitionist, hers are accomplishments that are freely given and greatly appreciated. She is well informed on current affairs and enjoys a healthy argument occasionally, but does not acquire all her knowledge in the gym and tea room. Enchanting straightforwardness, sparkling laughter, bewitching enthusiasm are hers. We have been enriched by these, because with her, what belongs to "Bird" belongs to Manhattanville.

Katy Farmer became Katy Nicholson in Senior Year; and Manhattanville became somewhat awed, properly respectful, and not a little envious! "Awed" seems a strange word to use in reference to Katy, though; her friendliness, her fineness, her own special sense of humor completely disarmed and enchanted us. She and Marge made the perfect duo. Their laughter chimed together, their courses coincided; their stories clicked perfectly; it was only their heights that differed! Katy's the little one, but only in height. For she has a large share of the qualities that we like to think typical of Manhattanville, courage and joy, faith in her ideals, a pervading sense of the glad things in life; Katy saw what was to be done—and Katy did!

Mary is a person who will grace any position into which life may lead her. Her vivid imagination is expressed in a delightful vein of humor. She is the backbone of the college room, and its cheerful mood is in large measure dependent upon her. Her sense of social responsibility is expressed by the determination with which she tackled Chemistry and Biology for pre-med use. She is an integral part of every association she belongs to, and these are legion. The Girls Scouts have flourished under her careful supervision; budding orators owe much to her critical appreciation; and her deep interest in what we cruder scholars term "culture" is absolutely sincere and without ostentation. Margaret studied Russian and plans to teach; and the wonder of it all is that she possesses a warm and devoted nature, and a capacity for selfless giving. It helped us over all the rough spots, and Julie probably never realized how much we depended on her perpetual gaiety. Behind her twinkling eyes and friendly manner, there is unexpected seriousness and more than average ability. We were glad when Julie became guardian of Manhattanville's own Romeo, because we know she won't be able to forget us with the dog as a lively reminder. When Ana's there, there's a song in the air—no question about it. Surely the extra-far-above-high C notes will be scaling this scholarly skyline as long as the Tower tolls the time. For Ana has sung and played her way into an unshakable reputation for the best, from Paderewski to "The Pirates", inclusive. But far from the traditional temperamental triller, Ana always had a good practical undertaking in each hand, and one for good measure. She never strays far from melody-making, so these artistic tendencies are lavished upon the more mundane activities of History, Sociology, Languages, Business Managing, Nurse's Aiding, Catholic Actioning, and anything else the campus has to offer. In other words, we salute friendly freshman, song-spreading Soph, genuine Junior- and simply super Senior, Ana, whom we shall follow from Verdi to Victory.

We have seen Southern charm before, at its most beguiling; and we have seen too, the vivid aliveness and mental awareness of a true member of Brownson; but never before have we seen the combination of the two, and with such delightful result. Kathy has touched our hearts with her gifted stories, lifted them with her songs and chilled them with her villainous propensities. Blonde hair tearing down the hockey field, company in mid-exam attacks of "flickeritis", blue-eyed smile above a flock of dark and tousled heads at Barat—these are Kathy. We love her for those jokes, that open-hearted companionship and the happy sense of being in a magic·circle which her friendship gives. MARY ANN RONEY, E. DE M.

1723 Iroquois Avenue, Detroit, Michigan
Convent of the Sacred Heart, Grosse Pointe, Michigan

The world is divided into those who give and those who take. Manhattanville asks us all to give, not for her sake but for ours. With every graduating class, she feels that each member has succeeded in some measure, but there are always those who do much more—who give and give and give again. Mari is one of these. We would like to say that she is typical Manhattanville—but she is not; she is ideal Manhattanville. The College has asked a great deal of her—she has never been known to refuse. Gallant far beyond the call of duty is Mari, the living symbol of "Noblesse Oblige". Hers is a magnetic personality pulsating with the vivid colors of vital crimson and electric blue. Hers is the splendor of a heart and spirit that finds no match on these Heights. The College "will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what she did here".

Marian can always be counted upon for a quick and intelligent rubber of bridge, or a convivial and harmonious bit of singing. The harp usually carries with it the connotation of an angelic nature, but we are happy to say that Marian is very much alive and ready for action. Occasionally she gives the deceptive impression of being demure, but watch her move on the basketball court, or run for the downtown bus; vivacity is a more apt adjective for her. The outcome of innumerable gay trips to West Point is tangibly shown on her third finger, left hand. "Love and laughter" is Marian's theme, and we are sure it will bring her happiness.

MARY ALICE SHERIDAN, E. DE M.

Molly has begun a new tradition at Manhattanville. It is the Sheridan tradition. It is one of competence and of sympathy, perfect qualities to make her the ideal teacher. She is cosmopolitan in her viewpoint and has shown this in the accurate way she keeps us posted on world affairs. With Molly, facts are fuel for her imagination as she has shown us in her clever short stories; she not only knows what happens—she makes things happen.

CAROL ANN SIMONSON

1105 Park Avenue, New York City, New York
Academy of the Sacred Heart, 1 East 91st St., New York City, N. Y.

Carol is unique. A lively, cheerful manner, a wonderful philosophy of life, and a delightful sense of humor make her a welcome companion. Despite the speed of acceleration and the work required of a history major, she still found time for Debating Club and Nurse's Aide. And more than these, she was an integral part of Manhattanville's informality—bridge games in the gym, long discussions over toast and coffee in the Tea Room. She is a person who somehow put us completely at ease. Her notes may be ponderous but as Carol says, "I got it all!"—and as we say, "Gives a lot in return!"

JEANNE ANTOINETTE SMITH, E. DE M.

460 Portland Avenue, Saint Paul, Minnesota
Convent of the Visitation, Saint Paul, Minnesota

From the cold state of Minnesota comes a girl with a very warm heart—Jeanne. The formulator of the word "efficiency" must have had Jeanne is mind. We'll always be grateful for her 'brain-child', the Biltmore reservation system at Manhattanville. And we will miss her in Glee Club, particularly remembering her "Iolanthe". Jeanne's dynamic energy, disarming smile, and willingness to help out in any difficulty are just some of the qualities we admire. We're proud of her success in her chosen field, and wish her the best of luck in her career. Jeanne has her fancy-free and frivolous side too, as we know from her many weekends downtown, her passion for the movies, and the much coveted doll collection. She's completely sincere, and always good-natured.

Arlene treads the well-worn path to the Tea Room when not in class, toting an ample supply of air-mail letters. Always spic-and-span in appearance, ever discreetly humorous and buoyantly cheerful, Arlene is engagingly friendly. She accepts with like eagerness either an extra-curricular task or a suggestion of a jaunt to "Petit's". Her willingness to help others at a moment's notice shows how well she is suited to her chosen field. We've loved Arlene's smiling brown eyes; "sure'n they'd steal your heart away" is saying too little. Combining the Senior dignity with the Freshman verve is not a common virtue, but it is Arlene's.

HELEN JOANNE TAYLOR, E. de M.

38 Lake Forest, Saint Louis, Missouri
Villa Duchesne, Saint Louis, Missouri

H. J. has a fashion consciousness and a wisdom about the right color that can bring a bit of spring to a rainy day at Manhattanville. She is accomplished in the art of living everything she wears. Besides this, H. J. has all the characteristics that make the gracious lady—composure, poise and friendliness. She is a good student, a good bridge player and a good friend. St. Louis has sent us our candidate for the perfect hostess. But such a picture is bound to be one-sided, which H. J. is not. Working for Interracial, Catechetical Committees and Nurse's Aide, and fighting the Basketball Battle of the Benziger Building, have more than equalized the scale. Manhattanville will miss H. J., who somehow struck the perfect balance.

Pat's a personality. Somehow we always think of her as doing something, accomplishing the thousand and one details for which she definitely has a talent. The Little Theatre will be desolate next year, lacking the master hand on the controls—Pat's, of course! She fiddled around with lights, pushed props across the floor, placed her characters where she wanted them—and before our eyes a sedate, properly Victorian, and masterfully arranged English drawing-room occupied the stage. And if you put Pat on a stage herself, it would be her fresh, young, entirely spontaneous personality that would be instantly appealing, the rare and very sincere quality of unselfishness that reaches out to all of us. Pat's a darling; she won't be ours in person now, but she will be in our hearts.

LAURA M. C. URRUTICOECHEA,E. DE M.

42 West 58th Street, New York, New York

Laura's formidably musical surname has been the dilemma of the College's most erudite linguists, and a stumbling block in frequent announcements since her Freshman year, when she decided to tolerate our inabilities, and became just "Laura". With a generously affable nature, complete with a contagious laugh and an ease of grasping Chemistry, Biology, and Physics after long hours in labs and the Library. There is an electric element in her personality; she enjoys laughing at herself as much as others might, after an occasional chemical explosion. With warmth and understanding well beyond her years, we love her tender, warm, portrayal of the Blessed Mother at Christmas time. Her cheerful studiousness is an incentive to us, an intellecutal boon to the world she's entering.

MARJORIE ANN VETTER, E. DE M.

6600 Underwood Avenue, Omaha, Nebraska
Academy of the Sacred Heart, Omaha, Nebraska

Marge has exploded the New Yorker's theory that the world is bounded on the West by the Hudson River. It is not only that she is from Omaha, but her friends are inclined to believe that the above city's Chamber of Commerce has sent her to Manhattanville. However, when dressed for a shopping expedition, she gives the appearance of a seasoned New Yorker. In between these trips downtown, she has found time to be one of our most dependable Nurse's Aides, and her personality makes her a sympathetic listener to every patient's troubles. Besides being everyone's audience, Marge lends her own cosmopolitan humor to any conversation. We admire her phenomenal ability to knit through any crisis, whether it be cramming for a decisive exam or deciding what to wear for an evening of dancing. When she leaves, we shall be lacking a valuable bridge player, a continually good-spirited friend and an all-round wonderful person.

MARY JANE VLYMEN

2 Lawrence Avenue, Rockville Centre, New York
Saint Agnes Academy, Rockville Centre, New York

The hardest of all to write is the Tower's salute to Vly. Her college career has been one long series of climaxes, among which directing class and English Club entertainments, conducting serenades, and editing the Tower were, for Vly, fairly minor achievements. As a senior, she presided over the Dramatic Club with her own casual dignity; she painted the superb madonnas, which, unknown to her, made her the college's favorite artist. Last year, she surpassed her own fine tradition of outstanding performances in her portrayal of the Melancholy Dane. Everyone who saw it recognized that here was more than talent, more than deep understanding—here was sheer magnificence. These are some of the things which she has done. Perhaps they will tell you what she is. We cannot. This is Vly. "Take her for all in all, we shall not look upon her like again."

Manhattanville was a world of uncertainties for us as Freshmen, but amazing Esther Ann always seemed to be a symbol of explanation in the midst of confusion. Through all the labyrinthian chaos of Choir, classes, councils, clubs, Esther knew everything and everyone. In those famous eyes there is a lack of wonder at the constraint of mere rules, and a sense of extemporaneous organization. It isn't the Marines who have landed at Manhattanville. It's Esther Ann. Streaky races over hockey fields and basketball courts in that long tan sweater and the red-patched socks, or she is leaving Convent Avenue bound for the "Ultima Thules" to which her Catholic Action leads. With Father Delaney we cannot forget her personal generosity without limit. Her casual humor is irrepresible. Her originality is symbolized by that green station-wagon. Manhattanville will shake a little on its heights when the fabulous Streaky leaves us.

It's the loyalty of spirit,
The unity of heart,
The one for all, the all for one
That makes us each a part

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

It's hard to believe that we are Juniors, and moreover Junior Sisters, who this year have watched the class of 1948 going through the humorous bewilderment of hazing days. We can be animated nursery rhymes at masquerades; we can dance in impromptu manner to "The Sidewalks of New York"; we can hand in eleventh hour term papers. At the same time we surprise each other by serious discussions of everything from Caruso to Crosby, from the fashion exhibit at the Museum of Modern Art to methods of indicating Ninth Army movements on our maps of Europe. With the music that Susan wrote for "The Maker of Dreams", and with the refrain that we sang with never ending cheerfulness of "having everything happen to us", came the always to be remembered song of March 22nd—our farewell to our very much loved warden, Mother Schroen and our welcome to our much to-be-loved Mother Britt. We promise never to forget theologians D'Arcy, Davis and Mersch. The responsibilities of Junior year and the good-byes to Mother Schroen called upon all our loyalty, our unity, our love of each other—and above all of Manhattanville.

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

This is the "banner class". These are the ones who have gone "all-out" for the Interracial Committee, who sing so easily, who think so clearly. This is the class who this fall said, "Those Freshman don't know how to act. They need a hazing—and a good one!" But the centenary class became a united whole this autumn. Their spirit and strength have developed steadily from that September almost two years ago when they reached, for the first time, Broadway and the Fourth Floor. From the time when the most homesick of those Freshmen valiantly blinked her eyes and went to Mother Morgan's welcoming assembly, they have grown. And they will continue to grow. They are a class strong with a latent authority which will one day lead Manhattanville. We, too, once said, "Those Freshman certainly need hazing!" But we have watched you grow. And we know that no hazing could have made you what you are. Manhattanville itself has molded you. You are of the College now; you know what it means.

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY

We were a little afraid of our Freshman sisters the first day of college last fall. They seemed so grown up and capable that we wondered if the tables would be turned, and maybe they would be taking care of us! But after they settled into the swing of things, they turned out to be pretty normal "frosh", and we loved them. They acquired fantastic sets of demerits, and we loved that too, probably because it reminded us so much of our own first year. We enjoyed their entertainments, their singing and their circus. We admired their good sense when they chose Barbara and Marie as class officers. We are proud of our "sisters", individually and as a class. In fact, now that Mother Weston and her class have been here for a year, we wonder how we ever got along without them!

ALOYSIA HARDY SCHOOL OF NURSING

From the day the first nurses arrived at Manhattanville in September of 1943, they have amazed us with their perpetual activity and their good humor in the face of crowded schedules with little vacation. Often when we have felt the urge to burst out in the familiar cry "I have so much work to do!" we have glanced at the nurses' schedule on the bulletin board and walked away in silence, feeling very small indeed. But our nurses go on blithely yet determinedly. We wonder how they ever found time to give that sensational Masque Ball. We admire them for their industry, and because they look so smart in their trim uniforms. Manhattanville is proud of the Aloysia Hardy School of Nursing; we are proud to know that wherever our Nurses are, perhaps even on the far-flung battlefields, there Manhattanville will be too.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

There is an impersonal quality about the term "Student Government", a quality somewhat set apart and aloof. But this is a completely personal organization which yet manages to maintain a definite dignity. And in consequence, the only girls in the College who can give us demerits rank high among the most popular. They are of us, yet they show us the way. They work hard without talking about it; they are unfailingly friendly; and they have established for us an ideal toward which to work. They have laid the cornerstone of our unity. We owe them a debt which we cannot repay. We can only do one thing for them. And they do not even ask that. But we can say to all of them, to Dottie and Mari particularly, and mean most deeply, "Thank you".

WELFARE

Every Monday at 5:30, seven members of the faculty and seven student representatives gather in the seminar room. There is no general discussion of what has been said between 5:30 and 6 o'clock, but the college knows and feels the meaning of Welfare. They know it, when Janet stands at Student Government Assembly to read the list of social censures, and they feel it in the standard of manners maintained by Manhattanville. The work of the members of Welfare is not easy. It is for them to raise the standard of social conduct and see that it is upheld. It is for them to remember that we are college girls, that this is 1945, and our world is at war; and yet they cannot, and we do not want them to, underestimate us, for each student must be proud of what Manhattanville asks of her. Every girl, who has truly caught the spirit of our college, is glad that there is Welfare and grateful that it works.

CHILDREN OF MARY

Each college club and council is a bright mosaic fitted into the colorful pattern of campus life. But there is one entity in College Organization whose spirit is in each of them, but whose character transcends them all. For the Children of Mary, Catholicism is everything, universal in application and infinitely strong in principle. Guided by the thoughts and teachings of Reverend Mother Benziger, the Children of Mary are those whose faith is most far-reaching and whose courage is the strongest. Their loyalty is imbedded in the deepest self-sacrifice. Theirs is the leadership in our pursuit of the greatest things that are.

BROWNSON HONOR SOCIETY

In the past few months the Brownson Society has grown almost incredibly dear to us. For it was our beloved Mother Dammann who in nineteen-forty crystallized her principles of ideal scholarship in establishing a students' honor society. Now we look upon its members as more than the intellectual élite. They are not merely the "A" students, they are Mother Dammann's chosen few—the ones who have come closest to realizing that totality of thought which is the end of Manhattanville education. As long as it continues we will have a visible manifestation of the standards of our President. For the Brownson Society is a living symbol of Mother Dammann.

CATHOLIC ACTION

Whole-hearted good will would characterize those in Catholic Action. The meaning alone makes us think of strength, peace, the Church in the world. At Manhattanville, Catholic Action must always meet with success; it is a tradition for the College to keep. Every day we are representing the Church at New York hospitals, Casita Maria, Barat—wherever help is needed. N. F. C. C. S. has surged onward and upward this year under the capable leadership of Ro Murphy, National President. Many a Manhattanvillite is now imbued with the enthusiasm of Ro and Bobby. As usual, Catholic Action has presented us with interesting speakers this year at those assemblies that invariably take a little class time! And so it's hats off again in 1945 to those who gave a little more through Manhattanville to God.

MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION

Under Marie Lou's capable and cheerful leadership, the Missionary Association has met successfully with the numerous demands of war. Each class, centralized by two elected representatives, has contributed greatly to the ever important needs of the missions, both domestic and foreign. The Annual Bridge Tea and Fashion Show was extremely successful, as were the Mission Association's other undertakings—Christmas baskets, clothes for the poor, the raising of money for various missions; and always the prayer and cooperation of the whole College that is so essential.

CHOIR

That extra half-hour of sleep in the morning, that after dinner trek to the gym have been willingly relinquished by the members of the choir. But not in vain. For the college has taken pride in its generous renditions; it has been grateful to it for its tributes to Mother Dammann, "Ma Mère" and Reverend Mother Lucas. For us it has embodied an important side of our spiritual life. We congratulate Esther Ann, its President, and we thank its individual members for the vocal prayer they have rendered to God.

REHABILITATION COUNCIL

The need for Rehabilitation and the reconstruction of the material things which have been destroyed in Europe have been keenly recognized at Manhattanville. Guided by the Council, the student body has shown their all-out interest and support by attendance and participation in the teas, dances, concerts, and drives given for its benefit. But the Council has done more. It has awakened in each student by its example a sense of personal responsibility, personal giving, and personal prayer which has strengthened the bond of unity of all under the loving hearts of Jesus and Mary.

DEFENSE COUNCIL

Manhattanville does know there is a War going on, partly from the well-filled gym on Saturday night and partly from the promoting of war-consciousness by the Council. It has urged us to regular visits to the Blood Donor Center, encouraged the buying of War Stamps, and generous contributions and interest in the Red Cross. But, most important, it has drawn us together each morning and evening to place the men in military service under the protection of Our Lady and has stimulated prayer and action for a true and lasting peace.

DEBATING CLUB

They are those who like to talk. For that reason they have joined the Debating Club, and they are learning how to use their words. They have debated; and they have discussed. They have talked publicly with before-hand "butterflies" and a later "Why didn't we do it better?" feeling. They have criticized and questioned; and from it all they have drawn experience. They have gained poise; they can talk more purposely. Under the skillful leadership of their President, Betty Baxter, they have learned from each other, from Mother Tenney, who is of infinite knowledge, and from Mister Doran, their coach. They are those who like to talk; and they are learning how to use their words.

DRAMATIC CLUB

Nowhere has the TOWER theme been better exemplified than in this year's Dramatic Club. Instead of giving two major productions, the first semester, or "workshop" period was spent not in displaying but in training talent—a pet project of its original President—the one and only Vly. The second semester introduced another departure from the tried and true Shakespeare, Barrie, and Co. "The Road to Samarkand" provided wide scope for both the dramatic and technical departments of the club, especially the latter who had to provide falling iron walls, basket elevators, and such. This will be the swan song for many whose sterling performance has become a tradition in the Dramatic Club. They will be missed but what they have given to the Dramatic Club will remain. It is that much better for their contribution.

GLEE CLUB

Sally lays down the gavel before a finer Glee Club than ever before. In spite of the fact that the musical compositions have been more and more ambitious and difficult, somehow the club members rose to new heights by surmounting the difficulties involved in the sudden accidental sharps and flats that always seem to appear just as the melody is flowing smoothly along. Under Mother Morgan's infallibly optimistic leadership, the Christmas Carols this year became a "strictly white tie affair", while the Spring Concert proved that it is possible in one year to have two hits, no strikes, and few errors.

Glee Club: Mary Becker, Kathleen Ball, Sally Chapman, Ana Ogarrio. Absent: Mamie Jenkins.

THE TOWER

At Manhattanville the Tower is a tradition. It has been strengthened by the progress of many Senior classes. For this Tower, we have taken Mother Dammann's words of "progress and tradition" because they typify the spirit of Manhattanville, and in particular, the spirit of the class of '45. It is inspired by the Seniors, written for them, and presented to them: it is the record of the Manhattanville which they have helped to make. In looking over this book, we hope that the Seniors will recognize their Freshman Year in the hazing of '48; their Sophomore Year in library-bound '47; and most of all, their deadline-haunted, copy-conscious, major-muddled Junior Year.

JUNIOR FINANCIAL COMMITTEE

An extra-curricular course in the subtleties of "how to keep your friends and still finance the Tower" becomes a required course for the Financial Committee. The intricacies of High Finance struck an unexpected note in the "classic chords" of the College. After this we feel that Wall Street would be mere child's play! Standing: Margaret Sheridan, Virginia Hopkins, Betty Hurley, Elaine Crosby, Mary Shellings, Margot Hardart. Second row: Marian Malley, Nancy Doran, Stan O'Connell, Sheila Rielly. First row: Patricia Quigley, Anne Barnes, Betty Kirby, Mary Carr, Betty O'Brien, Jane Callahan.

FRESHMAN FINANCIAL COMMITTEE

Our affection for our freshman sisters has the added note of gratitude; gratitude not only for saving the Tower Board from Debtor's Prison, but for their good-humored enthusiasm in doing so. Fathers wept and friends groaned, but the Freshmen stood firm, and marched their recalcitrant relatives to the bank! Standing: Joan Reilly, Barbara Boarman, Joan Leonard, Ann Montgomery, Carol Herberman, Sally Ann Ryan, Nancy McWilliams, Ann Niedringhaus. Sitting: Mimi Hagerty, Mimi Marcheve, Jean Ford, Ellen Hone, Yvone Kelly, Ellen O'Malley.

THE ENGLISH CLUB

The English Club offers a great deal to its members. There are the afternoon meetings that are filled with interesting discussions, literary flights, and often with chuckles as well. When the Club presented the modern Morality Play, the college was literally spellbound by the beauty and power of the poetry. Manhattanville is proud of the talent that the English Club has unearthed and gives to us and to the world. And it owes not a little to the capable hands guiding it, the unobtrusive and so pervasive inspiration given by Mother Williams, and the energetic, tactful counselling of President Patty.

THE ESSAY

Within the pages of the Essay lie the literary efforts of Manhattanville. Short-story writers, artists, critics, reviewers, poets, essayists—all have their place, and all fill it admirably. Here are our geniuses, their own brain-children in print, enabled by this valuable medium to ascertain their own ability and that of others, to get the magic of printer's ink into their blood. And we all feel a surge of pride for the Essay, which is so completely a part of Manhattanville; and an expression, however varied, of her ideals and spirit.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Promoting endess athletic activities from September to May, the Athletic Association is gratefully appreciated by both the active enthusiasts and the less limber, but hopeful athletes whom they have continuously encouraged. They have led us through an exciting year—an autumn of undefeated hockey, a successful basketball season, a year of interclass and individual competition—a year of victories taken modestly, of defeats accepted gracefully. Kinsey's vitality and Judy's efficiency, a goal for Sheila and Ruth, will be hard to duplicate. But the indefatigable energy and sportsmanship fostered by Mother Boyle, Mrs. Klug, Miss Fee, and the A. A. have nourished our ambitions, realized our hopes, and taught us how to be good sports.

Not Merely Camping But a Way of Life

OUR LADY OF LOURDES CAMP FOR GIRLS

and

CAMP ARCADIA FOR BOYS

are pleased to announce their thirty-eighth season, from July first to September first, and to assure their clients and friends of the continuance of the high standards which have won their confidence and cooperation.

The camps, each on its own lake, a mile apart, comprise an estate of sixteen hundred acres at twenty three hundred feet altitude, and are at Livingston Manor, in the Catskill Mountains, New York State.

Through happy, healthful yet gracious living and wholesome companionship each camper should bring home a quickened sense of spiritual values and of beauty in nature as well as a greater love of fair play and of tolerance toward his fellows.

At no time have the values learned at a good camp been more needed than they are today, when our chief concern should be the spiritual, moral and physical training of the youth who will shape the post-war world. Our Lady of Lourdes Camp and Camp Arcadia are primarily educational projects planned for the development of the whole child, in order that each may worthily fulfill the highest ideals of Catholic life.
